

REEN WATERMAN

Reen Waterman, with a successful business background in real estate for more than 35 years (where he was Marketing Director and co-owner of two real estate companies), was the real estate columnist for two years for APG Media of Chesapeake, a national media outlet, with his column “About the House.” His first book, “Helpful Homeowner Hacks” is a compilation of his most popular columns. Reen is a proud veteran who served as an infantry officer with the U.S. Army’s 25th Infantry Division.

With a keen eye for business enhancement, his column, Better Business Protocol, appears monthly in EDGE Magazine, Chattanooga’s only business magazine. Certified by the Charleston School of Protocol, Reen is an engaging business trainer on subjects that include communications, customer service, etiquette, leadership, networking, professionalism, public speaking, sales, and teamwork. Able to train on any subject, Reen can also create custom curriculum and provide executive coaching.

Further outlets for Reen’s prolific writing are Guideposts and numerous regional and national magazines. (Find his portfolio at <https://www.reenwaterman.com>.) An avid outdoorsman, Reen is also a member of the Outdoor Writer’s Association of America.

Reen and Linda Waterman are members of Silverdale Baptist Church. With a bachelor’s degree in history from Washington & Lee University and master’s degree in Christian counseling from Capital Bible Seminary, Reen is equally passionate about ministry opportunities to encourage, inspire, and be a catalyst for personal, marital, and spiritual growth. He is a sought-after Men’s Ministry speaker who combines insightful Biblical concepts, practical coping strategies for dealing with life’s challenges, his personal outdoor experiences, and a light-hearted humor that allows people to absorb and apply transformational truths.
